

Powering the Territory

A plan to unlock the energy and economic potential of the NT

Natural gas is critical to the NT's economic growth, energy security and a net zero emissions future.

The NT's abundant energy resources are one of the strongest areas of competitive advantage.

A strong gas industry will deliver long-term economic and employment opportunities for Territorians, while safeguarding unique environmental, cultural, social and community values.¹

In 2024 the NT has an opportunity to show the rest of Australia what can be achieved when the gas industry, government and the community work together to realise a modern industrial vision.

Ongoing support from the NT Government is needed to bring on new gas supply and ensure secure and affordable energy for the NT.

The upcoming NT election is a critical opportunity for the next government to realise the NT's potential and secure our long-term energy and economic future.

Australian Energy Producers has developed a strategic plan to maximise the economic opportunity for the NT in partnership with industry.

By prioritising these policy actions, the government can attract investment in new gas supply and unlock the NT's potential for economic growth and job creation.

¹ <https://territorygas.nt.gov.au/gas-strategy/northern-territory-gas-strategy>

Gas facts

Generates 86% of the NT's electricity

Contributes $5.8 billion annually to the NT economy

Supports more than 6,000 NT jobs

69% of Territorians support more energy from gas

A plan for economic growth and energy security

Our strategic plan outlines five policy actions for the next NT Government to unlock the potential of the NT's gas industry and drive economic and employment growth.

1 Deliver energy security for the Northern Territory

2 Unlock the economic and employment opportunities of gas

3 Streamline approval processes to bring on new gas supply sooner

4 Incentivise and support low emission technologies

5 Support a strong LNG export industry

australian energy producers